ABOUT THE NERPS 2027 CONFERENCE

The Network for Education and Research on Peace and Sustainability (NERPS) at Hiroshima University and the National Research and Innovation Agency (BRIN) will jointly host the sixth edition of the international conference on peace and sustainability titled The NERPS 2027 Conference at BRIN Science Techno Park in Jakarta, Indonesia from March 17 to 20, 2027. For details, please visit the conference website: <https://nerps.org/nerps2027-conference-in-jakarta/>.

Ten years since the adoption of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, progress has been made in terms of access to education, access to electricity, infrastructure, and the Internet, poverty eradication, malaria prevention, and biodiversity protection, among other targets. However, almost half of the targets are making moderate progress, with 35% having stalled or regressed. Millions of children are affected by malnutrition, socio-economic inequalities persist, global greenhouse gas emissions reached a record high in 2023, and conflict-related deaths have increased. With five years left until the 2030 target, this combination of improvements and deteriorations demands a reappraisal of the Sustainable Development Goals. Preceding the launch of the Global Sustainable Development Report (GSDR) in September 2027, this NERPS 2027 Conference aims to bridge scholarly literature and policy lessons to contribute to transdisciplinary insights for accelerating the attainment of the goals and charting pathways beyond 2030. It also aims to contribute to a series of policy dialogues that would lead to getting peace mainstreamed into the next set of United Nations development goals, which are expected to be formulated by 2030. To achieve these objectives, the NERPS 2027 Conference offers a platform for students, researchers, and practitioners to present their work, exchange ideas, and forge partnerships towards a more peaceful and sustainable world. The conference will feature research presentations, expert roundtables, innovative workshops, and an optional excursion.

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

Display your activities, services, and products during the event to a variety of participants. The Conference brings together students, researchers, and practitioners in a professional setting of international experts – a unique opportunity for enterprises, publishers, and institutions to introduce their activities.

Support selected students who are expected to play a leading role in advancing the understanding of the important relationship between peace and sustainability in their respective countries.

SPONSORSHIP PACKAGES OVERVIEW

The funds raised will be spent on financial support for selected students who submit full papers by the deadline – November 20, 2026. A scholarship of a maximum of US$1,000 per student intends to partially cover travel and accommodation costs.

The funds provided by a sponsor could be in the range of US$500 to US$10,000.
(Please refer to the table in Annex A.)
